

he Brac

women have made," Craig Burhart, owner of Cayman Brac Depth Watersports, an operation that will be working with UWF. "My staff and I are happy to do whatever we can to help restore their confidence and ability to enjoy life," he added. As Sister Islands District Commissioner, Mr. Scott pointed out, although the weeklong event driven by UWF, it was made possible through the cooperative efforts of both public and private sectors in Cayman Brac.

"This is further proof that a partnership between businesses and government can produce successful results. We see the potential for the development of our island's relationship with UWF," Mr. Scott said.

Cayman Brac is one of the safest, most tranquil places on earth, and we are delighted to be able to share this beautiful island with those who have had to deal with the trauma of war," said Sister Islands MLA Les Kirkconnell.

A programme to serve those who deserve so much is entirely honourable, and Cayman Brac's involvement simply the right thing to do," he added.

Spokesperson for UWF, country singer-songwriter Graham Allen, will also be coming to the Brac with the group.

In addition, a local band, known as Foots has announced plans to create a special commemorative event to mark this visit.

Mr. Simon Cooper, left, and Mr. Daniel Priestley show off the recently-arrived second edition of Conveyancing Law and Practice in the Cayman Islands. Photo: Submitted

Law book republished

New copies of the second edition of Conveyancing Law and Practice in the Cayman Islands have arrived on Grand Cayman.

The book deals with the process by which land is transferred.

It was originally conceived as a tailor-made manual for students on the Cayman Islands Law School's Professional Practice Course, primarily to meet the needs of law students and trainee attorneys in Cayman. As the book describes local practice, narrating the application of statutory provisions and decisions of the Cayman courts, Mr. Simon Cooper said the book has also been popular in the wider legal community, states a press release.

"We ran out of copies of the first edition very quickly.

I hadn't expected such a demand for a technical legal work," he said.

The book, which focuses entirely on Cayman legal practice, is aimed at developing the understanding of the conveyancing process in the Cayman Islands, and is used at the Law School as the basis for training legal skills in practical scenarios.

Conveyancing Law and Practice in the Cayman Islands emphasises the professional and ethical framework of legal practice in the field.

Anyone interested in obtaining copies of this publication (CI$125 each) can call at the Law School Reception, second floor, former CIBC Building, 54 Edward Street, George Town, telephone 945-0077.